ABSTRACT

This guide is designed for Albanian language training of Peace Corps workers in Albania, is intended to be used in a competency-based language training program, and reflects daily communication needs in that context. It consists of an introductory section on the history, alphabet, and phonology of the Albanian language and a series of 14 topical instructional units. Each unit contains a page or more of information about an aspect of Albanian culture and between four and nine lessons, each targeting a specific language competency. Lessons include the targeted competency, a brief dialogue, vocabulary list(s), grammar and vocabulary notes, and pronunciation notes. Unit topics include classroom communication, a conversation with a host counterpart or family, expressing time and date, food, housing, communications services, transportation, giving and getting directions, shopping, invitations and social behavior, using community services, discussing work, health and medical services, and international relations. Appended materials include a list of competencies, dialogue translations in English, additional notes on grammar, vocabulary for expressing date and season, and an Albanian-English glossary. (MSE)

Acknowledgments

This book is one of four Peace Corps language texts prepared under the supervision of Nancy Clair in early 1992. It is hoped that this draft will be helpful in the initial language training for Volunteers in Albania. Most language text books take years to complete; this text was planned, written, and printed in less than four months. Working at a great distance from the country where this language is to be learned and spoken by the Volunteers, the authors have gone to great lengths to provide authentic language and as much useful explanatory material as possible. The book will certainly benefit from revisions, additions, and improvements in subsequent editions, but we are proud to have this volume ready for use by the first group of PCVs to enter Albania. It is the result of work not only by the author(s), but also by Nancy Clair and staff at Peace Corps Washington headquarters, especially Toni Borge, Training Officer for PACEM. The textbook project was initiated by PACEM Regional Director, Jerry Leach. I have been responsible for editing the English prose and providing technical support.

Preface

This book is intended to be used in a competency-based language training program. A competency-based approach to language training is one which focuses on the specific tasks that learners will need to accomplish through language. This approach focuses not only on language, but also on the cultural context and purpose of the communication. Some competencies are closely tied to work tasks, such as reporting an absence, explaining a procedure, or making an appointment with a supervisor. Others reflect basic survival needs like buying food, handling emergencies, and using local transportation. Still other competencies are part of ordinary social transactions, such as discussing home and family, requesting clarification, or expressing likes and dislikes. The competencies included in this book are those which we anticipate Peace Corps Volunteers will need most during their initial months in the country.

The competency-based approach is particularly well-suited to adult learners, who bring many advantages to the language classroom. First, they are experienced learners whose cognitive skills are fully developed. This means they can make generalizations, understand semantic and syntactic relationships and integrate the new language into their already developed first language. Second, adult learners are self-directed and independent. They have strong feelings about how and what they need to learn, and they take responsibility for that learning. Finally, adult learners—especially Peace Corps Volunteers—are highly motivated. They understand the importance of being able to communicate in the new language; in this new endeavor they have undertaken.

The competency-based approach takes advantage of these strengths that adults have as language learners. First, it is designed to be relevant. Because lessons are based directly on the needs of the learner, there should be no doubt as to their usefulness. Those which are not relevant should be omitted, and any essential competencies which have been overlooked should be added. (It is expected that further needs assessments will be conducted in order to plan revisions to this text). Second, basing instruction on competencies means that goals are clear and concrete. The learners know what success will look like from the start and can assess their own progress toward mastery of the competencies. Third, competency-based language programs are flexible in terms of time, learning style, and instructional techniques. There is no need to linger over a lesson once mastery of a competency has been demonstrated and, within program constraints, extra time can be devoted to more difficult competencies. Lessons can—and should—be taught through a variety of techniques, since different learners benefit from different kinds of approaches. And there is always room for experimenting with new methods, combining them with more familiar ones.

It is hoped that, with the help of trained Peace Corps language instructors, this book will provide the basis for interesting, relevant language instruction which will enable new Peace Corps Volunteers to function effectively in their new surroundings and to begin the process of continuing their language learning throughout their time of service.

THE ALBANIAN LANGUAGE

A Brief Introduction

HISTORY

Albania is a country located in the south-western part of the Balkan Peninsula. Its western shores are bathed by the Adriatic Sea. It borders Yugoslavia and Greece. With the size of Maryland (ca. 11,000 sq. mi = 28,748 km<sup>2</sup>), Albania has a population of 3.5 million (1992).

Albanian is an Indo-European language. From the beginning, however, Albanian was connected with Illyrian, Thracian and/or Dacian, three languages spoken by populations inhabiting the Balkans over 3,000 years ago. Today, Albanian scholars present the historical argument of the Illyrian presence mainly in the present day Albania to support their thesis. In addition, many Illyrian names are explained by modern Albanian. Toponymy and archeology also confirm the transition from the ancient Illyrian to contemporary Albanian, and that the language "... is the same language that has continuously been used from generation to generation." (Sh. Demiraj)

Naturally, in the course of almost three millennia, the Albanian language has enriched its vocabulary with borrowings from ancient and modern Greek, Latin and later Italian, Slavic, and most recently from Turkish (during a five century occupation). The surprising character of the Albanian language is the fact that it has succeeded "... to safeguard its originality as a specific language, to preserve and enrich with domestic means its inherited foundation, to fully protect its own grammatical system from outside influences." (Fjalori Enciklopedik Shqiptar, "Gjuha shqipe")

Medieval sources indicate that Albanian was called "Arbërishte" (arbënishte). The present name SHQIP (Albanian) was noticed for the first time in 1555 AD with the publication of the first Albanian book MESKARI (Missal) by Father Gjon Buzuku. (How did the name change and when, has not been established yet.) Scholars are surprised to see that the two existing Albanian dialects Geg (in the North) and Tosk (in the South) were closer to each other in 1555 than they are today. This is explained, of course, by the fact that Albania has been occupied by the Ottoman Empire since 1481, which prevented the free movement of people and ideas, thus bringing the physical separation of a nation. Consequently, we have the independent development of the two dialects.

One of the features of Albanian, as a typical Balkan language, is its analytical character, exhibited in the declension system with its prepositive and postpositive articles, as well as the combination of synthetic and analytic forms in the verbal system. (M. Camaj)

THE ALBANIAN ALPHABET

Since 1481 to 1912, Albania was occupied by the Ottomans. By the end of the 17th century, part of the local population converted to Islam. Other sections remained Roman Catholic (North), and Eastern Orthodox (South). Due to the organization of the Ottoman Empire, religion took nationalistic overtones and although Albanians remained primarily Albanians, Moslems began using the Arabic alphabet, Catholics--Latin, and Orthodoxes--Greek. In the Congress of Manastir (1908), they all agreed to use Latin as the common alphabet.

Albanian has 36 letters; seven vowels (IPA in the brackets):

a[ə] e[ɛ] ë[ə] i[i] o[o] u[u] y[y]

It has also many diphthongs, the most important being:

ie[iɛ] ye[yɛ] ua(GEG:ue)[ua]

The 29 consonants are:

b	c	c	d	dh	f	g	gj	h	j	k	l
ll	m	n	nj	p	q	r	rr	s	sh	t	th
v	x	xh	z	zh.

(For their approximate pronunciation see The Table)

CULTURAL NOTE

INTRODUCTION TO ALBANIAN LANGUAGE AND EDUCATION

THE LANGUAGE

Albanian is an Indo-European language. It's one of the oldest languages; yet, different from the others. The Albanian language seems to have kept its own features from the very ancient times, which linguists believe have reached us today, in their contemporary forms.

Historically, the unified national literary Albanian can be traced to 1908, when it was decided to accept the Latin alphabet. However, the two main dialects, the Geg in the North and the Tosk in the South, have developed independently. It was only in 1952 that an administrative order was issued by the Communist government requesting that the Tosk dialect be considered as the basis for the future unified literary Albanian. By 1972, the decision was final, and no one could write in Geg dialect anymore for fear of political persecution.

That same year, 1972, Albanians in Yugoslavia decided to accept the unified literary Albanian by sheer necessity, and use it in their schools and publications. Since then, the present standard "Gjuha e njësuar letrare" (the unified literary language) remains the only one used in Albania and in Yugoslavia, causing great harm to writers of the Geg (northern) dialect. The Tosk dialect is the standard Albanian that is used in this textbook to minimize possible confusions.

Today, Albanian is spoken by about 10 million people around the world: 3.5 million in Albania, 3 million in Yugoslavia (Kosova, Macedonia, Serbia, and Montenegro), over 1 million in Turkey, as well as large groups of Albanians in South Italy (known as Arbëreshë), Greece, Europe, USA, Canada, and Australia.

Albanian is a phonetic language. Each letter has a specific sound that does not change in the context, making its reading and writing rather easy. As a rule, Albanian spelling corresponds to the pronunciation of words quite directly. The alphabet has 36 letters: 29 consonants and 7 vowels. In spite of the differences of the two main dialects, both the spoken and the written Albanian are understood by all Albanians. Education and mass media have further facilitated this process.

THE SCHOOLS

The educational system of Albania is highly centralized and entirely public. The Ministry of Education and Culture (Ministria e Arsimit dhe Kulturës) has the authority to organize the educational and cultural institutions, open and close schools, appoint teachers, prepare curricula and school programs, as well as approve every textbook used in the classroom from elementary to university level. For every district, there is a Department of Education (Seksioni i Arsimit) which oversees all instruction.

This strict regimentation of education, which was also closely watched by the former Party of Labor (Communist) of Albania (PLA), was carried out for the communist indoctrination of the young generation. Since December 1990, with the advent of political pluralism in Albania, the situation has begun to change.

The organization of the educational system remains rather traditional. The first "Headstart" programs begin at the age of 3 to 6 years in "Kopshti i fëmijve" (kindergarten) where most of the youngsters learn how to read and write.

It is a 4-4-4 system. Elementary school begins at the age of 6 and lasts 4 years (age 10). Registration is universal and attendance compulsory, as parents are held responsible for children's absence. From the elementary schools, the youngsters are promoted to "Shkolla tetëvjeçare," the equivalent of the American junior high school, for another 4 years. At age fourteen compulsory schooling ends.

The secondary high schools are highly diversified. For the general public there are "Gjimnazi i Përgjithshëm" (General High School), and "Gjimnazi Pedagogjik" (Pedagogical High School) geared to the future elementary school teachers. Vocational high schools called "Teknikume" prepare the youngsters for various trades.

Higher education has been, until now, strictly controlled by the PL of Albania, in order to create a new class of technocrats and experts faithful to the Communist regime, with devastating effects for the noncommunist talented young people. The institutions of higher learning have been under the direct control of the only State University of Tiranë until recently (1991). Presently, there are at least four more new universities in Shkodër, Tiranë, Elbasan, and Korçë, all former branches of the State University of Tiranë.

Parallel to the universities operate also several Institutes of Higher Learning (Instituti i Lartë) of 2 and 4 year sequence, similar to the American Junior and Senior Colleges.

There is no nationwide exam system to qualify for university admission. Grade average remains the main criterion. Normally an average of 9 (out of 10) is required. To encourage women's education, an average of 8.5 (out of ten) is required for women. The school-year begins on September 1, and ends on May 30 or June 5 of the following year.

The school day begins at 8:00 AM. It lasts until 1:00 PM for elementary schools, and up to 1:40 PM for high schools. There is a ten minute break from 9:40 to 10:00 AM or, half an hour (10:35 to 11:05) for high schools. For high school students five or six major subjects are scheduled for every day (schools are open on Saturdays too): Albanian, one foreign language (formerly Russian, and now English, French, Italian, and German), mathematics, biology, chemistry, physics, history, geography. (Marxism-leninism has been discontinued.) Art, music, and gym are not offered daily. Classes are heterogeneous and students remain in the same rooms the entire day. All students have more or less the same schedule.

Presently, education in Albania is universal and literacy is very high. Tradition for education is well-grounded, respect for the teaching profession and the teacher is very high, and discipline in schools is rather strict. There is no social promotion, and failure is still a badge of shame.

March 7 is Teacher Recognition Day. Students and parents usually bring flowers, cards, and small gifts to their favorite teachers.

Since 1991, democratic reforms have been instituted in all schools of Albania, eliminating the prior practice of discriminating against the opponents of the former communist regime and their children.

TOPIC 1

1. COMPETENCY: To greet and respond to greetings

SITUATION: Classroom

ROLES: PCV- T (Teacher)

T: Mirëdita, nxënës!

PCV: Mirëdita, Zoti mësuës.

T: Si jeni?

PCV: Mirë, falemnderit. E ju?

T: Mirë, falemnderit.
Mirë-u-pafshim!

PCV: Mirë-u-pafshim!

VOCABULARY

Mirë	well
Dita	the day
Mirëdita!	Hello! Good day!
Nxënës	student(s)
Zoti (Z.)	Mister (Mr.)
Zonja (Zja)	Madam (Mrs.)
Zonjusha (Zsha)	Miss
Mësues	Teacher
Si?	how?
Jeni?	are you?
Falemnderit!	Thank you!
Mirë-u-pafshim!	See you again!

TOPIC 1

GRAMMAR AND VOCABULARY NOTES

Daily greetings in Albanian are answered by repeating them.

Ex: T: MIRËMENGJES!! PCV: MIRËMËNGJES!! (Good morning!)
T: MIRËMBRËMA! PCV: MIRËMBRËMA! (Good evening!)

The expression: TUNGJATJETA! is widely used at any time of the day. It means both "Hello" and "Goodbye."

The expression: LAMTUMIRË! is also used to say goodbye.

Most of the time, Albanian greetings are accompanied by a handshake. A "good" handshake is seen as a sign of good friendship.

Usually, women do not volunteer to shake hands; however, they will respond to an extended hand.

The up-to-now mandatory SHOK (m.) and SHOQE (f.) = Comrade, has been dropped, and may sound offensive.

PRONUNCIATION NOTES

- Except for the combined symbols: dh, ll, rr, sh, th, xh, and zh, all letters of the Albanian alphabet are read individually, with slight differences in their openness or closeness.

TOPIC 1

2. COMPETENCY: To introduce oneself and to ask others to introduce themselves.

SITUATION: Classroom

ROLES: PCV - Teacher

T: (Unë) quhem Ilir.
Si quesh ti?

PCV: (Unë) quhem Mark.

T: Si quesh ti?

PCV: (Unë) quhem Ardita.

T: Shumë mirë. Gëzohem!

PCV: Falemnderit, Zoti mësues!

VOCABULARY

Unë I

Quhem (I) call myself
(My name is. . .)

Quesh (you) call yourself
(Your name is. . .)

Ti you (sing.)

Gëzohem! I'm glad!

Ilir Ilir (common boy's name)

Ardita Ardita (girl's name)

TOPIC 1

GRAMMAR AND VOCABULARY NOTES

- In a question form, the personal pronoun usually goes after the verb, or maybe omitted.
Ex: Ti quhesh Ilir. (You call yourself Ilir) - statement.
Si quhesh ti? (How do you call yourself?) - question.
- Due to the different endings of the verb in a conjugation, Albanian oftentimes omits the personal pronoun.
Ex: Unë quhem Ilir. (I call myself Ilir.) or: Quhem Ilir. (I call myself Ilir.)
- GËZOHEMI in Albanian is used as the French: ENCHANTÉ!

GRAMMAR AND VOCABULARY NOTES

- The negative MOS (don't) is used in command forms with verbs. Sometimes it is used alone.

Ex: MOS KOPJONI! Do not copy!

MOS! don't (when the verb is understood)

- As in English, the imperative in Albanian usually involves dropping the personal pronoun. The second person singular sometimes drops the ending.

Ex: TI KOPJON. (You copy) - KOPJO! (Copy!) sing.

JU KOPJONI. (You copy) - KOPJONI! (Copy!) plur.

- In Albanian, adjectives may or may not have an article. Those that have, mark the gender by prefixing the singular articles

I for masculine singular. Ex: I FUNDIT (the last)

E for feminine singular E FUNDIT (the last)

TË for masc. and fem. plural TË FUNDIT (the last)

TOPIC 2

THE ALBANIAN FAMILY

CULTURAL NOTE

As in the past the family is the bedrock of Albanian society. Traditionally, the family had patriarchal features, respectful of its elders and careful to preserve time-honored customs and social values, such as group and personal honor, the "Besa" (the word of honor), duty and loyalty, bravery, and family pride.

Albanian families are relatively large, with three or four children. In the rural areas, families have more children, mostly as an answer to the needs for farm labor.

Prior to 1945 Communist takeover, mobility for Albanian families was minimal. Houses were inherited from father to sons for generations, and mostly kept extending the existing physical structures to accommodate the newcomers. Since 1945, with the process of forced industrialization this characteristic element has been weakened, and population movements have changed the former large Albanian family composition. Still, it is not unusual to see two, three or more brothers living in one large house fit to be used as "apartments." New complexes of apartment buildings have also risen in the major cities and industrial areas. Youth follows the jobs.

The role of the woman has also changed. Mandatory work, both in the cities and in the villages, has brought Albanian women, who used to be only housewives, to the outside working force. Women now are included in the country's educational system, and their voices are being heard in almost every field of human endeavor, including politics.

In the last decades, Albania has made determined efforts to emancipate the family. As a result, relations inside the family have become more egalitarian, more modern in character, thus coming closer to Western cultural patterns. Nevertheless, it is still evident that even today, the Albanian family remains male-dominated, in a male-oriented society.

TOPIC 3
TO TELL TIME AND DATE

COMPENTENCIES

1. TO FIND OUT THE TIME AND RESPOND TO QUESTIONS ABOUT TIME
2. TO IDENTIFY THE DAY AND THE DATE
3. TO DISCUSS SCHEDULES
4. TO IDENTIFY DAILY ROUTINES
5. TO DISCUSS MAJOR HOLIDAYS

TOPIC 3

TO TELL TIME AND DATE

CULTURAL NOTE

Albanians work six days a week, eight hours a day, as a rule; but daily and weekly work schedules may vary, depending on the working center, industry, or sector of the economy. In general, Albanian workers in urban centers have followed the wide-spread practice of workers in other Mediterranean countries. They divide the working day by taking a two to three hour break at mid-day, especially during the summer, for a leisurely lunch, followed by a nap, "the siesta," after which they return to their jobs and work until late in the afternoon or early evening.

The industrialization process of the country has significantly changed this pattern; factories working on three shifts require the 8-hour workday. This, in turn, has also affected the schools, where morning and afternoon sessions have been replaced by an uninterrupted school day from 8:00 AM to 1:30 PM.

Often times, hours are counted from 0 to 24 (which indicates midnight). Thus, 1:00 P.M. corresponds to 13:00 o'clock.

There are few official holidays in Albania. The 28 November Flag Day is the major one. May 1, the International Day of the Workers and January 11, Day of the Republic are also, with the New Year, official holidays. Religious holidays, banned since 1967, are now being observed by the faithful, but with no time off from work.

C: Kur shpresoni të arrini atje?

PCV: Shoferi thotë rreth orës 14.00.

C: Sa ditë do të qëndroni në Shkodër?

PCV: Besoj dy ditë.

VOCABULARY

Më thuaj!	Tell me! (sg)
Më thuani!	Tell me! (pl. or polite)
Në ç'orë? (expression)	At what time?
Do të nisesh (v.)	Will you depart?
Për	for, in the direction of
Besoj (v.)	I think, I believe
Rreth	about
Shpresoni (v.)	you hope (pl.)
Arrini (v.)	you arrive
Atje	There, over there
Shofer, i	driver (the)

TOPIC 3

Sa ditë?	How many days?
Do të qëndroni?	will you stay?
Në	in
Shkodër	Shkodër (major town, northern Albania)

GRAMMAR AND VOCABULARY NOTES

- The direct and indirect object pronoun MË (me or to me) usually precede the verb even in the imperative mood.
Ex: MË THUAJ! (Tell me) MË SHKRUAJ (Write to me)
- The verbs BESOJ (I believe), SHPRESOJ (I hope), and QENDROJ (I stay) are regular verbs.
- The invariable DO + the subjunctive gives the future tense.
Ex: DO TË FILLOJ (I will start); DO TË QËNDROJ (I will stay)
- The afternoon hours are given as 13.00 to 24.00; or the expression PASDREKE is added.
Ex: Ora 14.00 or, Ora 2.00 pasdreke

PRONUNCIATION NOTE

- THUAJ: The TH is pronounced as TH in THIN. The diphthong UA [ua] is fully pronounced. The final J as Y in YES.

TOPIC 3

4. COMPETENCY: To identify daily routines

SITUATION: Office

ROLES: PCV - Albanian colleague

C: Mos harroni! Kemi mbledhje sot.

Lëndë mësimi	subjects
Gjuhë, ha	language (the)
I, e huaj	foreign (m. f. sg.)

GRAMMAR AND VOCABULARY NOTES

- As in English, the negative MOS (Don't) is used in command forms before the verb. Ex: MOS HARRONI! (Don't forget!)
- There is a rather complicated system of noun declensions in Albanian. To illustrate, the following is a sample of the definite form of a feminine noun singular:

Nominative	KLAS-A (the class) (who? what?)
Genitive	i, e, të KLAS-ËS (of the class) (whose? of which?)
Dative, ablative	KLAS-ES (to, from the class) (to, from whom? to, from what?)
Accusative	KLAS-ËN (the class) (whom? what?)

PRONUNCIATION NOTES

- MBLEDH-JE: (meeting). The MB sounds as a strong M. DH sounds as TH in THOUGH; J sounds as Y in YES.
- PËR-GJITH-SHME: (general) The accents falls on the I.

TOPIC 3

FOOD

COMPETENCIES

1. TO DESCRIBE FOOD NEEDS, PREFERENCES
2. TO ORDER FOOD IN A RESTAURANT
3. TO ASK FOR THE BILL AND DISCUSS PRICES
4. TO ASK ABOUT TYPICAL FOOD

TOPIC 4

FOOD

CULTURAL NOTE

Albanians' main staple remains bread: corn or wheat. Their expression "për të ngrënë bukë" (lit. to eat bread) means "let's have a meal" indicating the importance of bread in the diet.

Although a poor country, Albania has a reputation for its tasty and wholesome bread in a variety of grains and textures. The nation's favorite choice of meat by far is lamb, prepared in a variety of ways, often combined with rice (oriz), boiled potatoes (patate), or different vegetables (zarzavate).

Perhaps the hallmark of Albanian cuisine is the LAKROR (some call it BUREK), a large pizza-size dish, with a dozen or so very thin layers of dough filled (between the top and bottom layers) with a vegetable, meat, or cheese and egg preparation. A clear brandy, called RAKI is the national alcoholic beverage. A thick espresso coffee "Turkish-style" is a very popular drink at any time of day.

Albania, being an agricultural country, normally produces and consumes large quantities of milk and milk products. Vegetables and fruits are also found during their seasons. Recently, a small industry of preserves and canned food has made it possible to have an extended use of them.

The essence of the Albanian cuisine - as for the rest of the Balkans - remains Middle-eastern, with a generous use of butter, olive oil, sugar, and flour. Fish is also a main staple, especially in the coastal and lake areas. The KORANI, a special striped bass of the Pogradeci Lake, is widely known.

However, Albanian cuisine has been broadened and enriched by recipes borrowed from abroad. Accordingly, a menu in an Albanian restaurant may well feature such entrees as BIFTEK (steak), RAGU (Fr. ragout), etc. SPAGHETTI is also very popular.

Large scale restaurants are not yet developed in Albania. The existing ones have limited capacity. Many of them, are family run and specialize in one or two dishes.

The waiter is called "garson" (from French garcon) or "kamarier" (from Italian cameriere). They are mostly men. For ladies the word "zonjushë" (Miss) is used. To draw his or her attention, people usually waive, call "garçon" or click the glass slightly with silverware.

TOPIC 4

Tipping call "bakshish" is expected, if not added to the bill (usually 10 to 12 percent).

Smoking is heavy in restaurants, and there are no sections allocated to non-smokers.

TOPIC 4

1. COMPETENCY: To describe food needs, preferences

TOPIC 5

HOUSING

CULTURAL NOTE

The very private nature of the Albanian family has produced private homes as the only housing feature in that country. Stone houses, especially common in the mountains, are called "Kulla." They are usually large and tall with small windows, and shelter large patriarchal families. They lack most of the familiar comforts of Western homes, but they all have electricity.

In the cities there are more comfortable houses usually made of stone or brick since wood is somewhat scarce in Albania. Most of them have an oriental architecture, with verandas and roofs covered with red Spanish tiles. They include a front yard, usually surrounded by a high wall for complete privacy for those living inside (especially women), and a backyard used as a vegetable orchard.

Except in major towns, where water is brought from the adjacent mountains, water is drawn from the houses' wells. For Albanians, the house is a kind of sanctuary, and is jealously protected. The violation of this privacy may cause frictions and conflicts.

Since the 1945 Communist takeover, many Albanians living in the countryside have moved to the cities, thus creating severe housing shortages. The state-run construction industry has built entire blocks of apartment buildings. The units are small and cramped, and the buildings are generally drab and in disrepair.

The situation in the cities has worsened during recent years with the steady economic deterioration. In some rural areas, however, housing has comparatively improved, with the introduction of electricity and running water, as well as the introduction of modern furniture and home appliances.

6. TO BUY STAMPS, SEND TELEGRAMS, MAIL PARCELS

TOPIC 6

COMMUNICATION

CULTURAL NOTE

There has been a notable expansion of communication facilities in Albania. Radio, and more recently TV sets, have become standard features in numerous homes, even in villages. Private phones are as yet very limited to a few homes in a few major cities. It has been reported, however, that all of the country's towns and villages are now linked by a telephone network, to facilitate governmental business and improve, what the communists perceived as national defense and security.

P.T.T (Post-Telephone-Telegraph) is the abbreviation used for the post office. There is a wide network of post offices all round the country. In the major towns, there is also a "central" office opened 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The office hours are 8:00 AM to 5:00 PM. One can buy stamps, make long distance calls, send telegrams, and mail parcels either in other towns or abroad. Until now, PTT has also been in charge of distributing the daily press, a service that was highly criticized for its inefficiency. Sending telegrams by calling the PTT is not practiced in Albania. One should go to the PTT, fill in a form, and hand it to the clerk.

An automatic telephone system recently adapted in Albania covers only a few cities. For the rest of the country, or for calls abroad one must ask for operator assistance. Telephone communications, especially with the outside world, are very expensive.

The general PREFIX (country code) for entering Albania is 3-5-5. Then one must dial the area code of the city (Tirana has 52) and finally the number of the party we are seeking. Normally, phone numbers in Albania are of 4 digits, some of 5 digits.

The news in Albania is provided by the local newspapers. Each political party has its own newspaper which defends the party line. The national Radio Tirana, and the many local radios, as well as the national TV network serve the needs of local and foreign listeners. The National Radio Tirana and the National TV center are subsidized by the Government.

Foreign radio stations frequently listened to are Voice of America, BBC World Services, and Radio Vatican.

COMPETENCIES

1. TO LOCATE MEANS OF TRANSPORTATION
2. TO ASK FOR DESTINATION AND DISTANCE
3. TO PURCHASE TICKETS
4. TO ASK QUESTIONS AND RESPOND TO BUS DRIVER'S INSTRUCTIONS

TOPIC 7

TRANSPORTATION

CULTURAL NOTE

In the past, in rural Albania, people travelled by donkeys, horses, and mules. These beasts of burden are still used to some extent for travel and transport of goods by farmers.

At present, however, more modern means of transportation are available as well. Buses, trains, bicycles, motorcycles, in addition to a surging fleet of private taxis are operating. Private cars, forbidden until recently, are beginning to come into use also.

Although the road system is not up to modern standards, it does cover the entire country. Unlike in the past, almost every Albanian village can now be reached by car or bus. Public transportation remains the backbone of the system, and the use of buses and trains is of paramount importance.

Due to the long isolation of the country for 50 years, and its policy of self-sufficiency, roads, bridges, and rail tracks are in bad shape, unpaved or corroding, and huge investments will be needed to modernize and vitalize the transportation system. Modern highways do not exist, but are in the planning stage by American, German, and Italian companies.

Water transportation is important for travelers and shipping merchandise from one port to another. New plans are being drafted to secure the handling of large ships by the Albanian ports, as it is contemplated to make of that country the gateway to the Balkans.

Air transportation is provided by several foreign airlines. There are no domestic flights for lack of appropriate airports, and also due to the short distances to be covered in such a small country.

TOPIC 7

1. COMPETENCY: To locate means of transportation

COMPETENCIES

1. TO ASK FOR AND GIVE LOCATION OF MAJOR BUILDINGS
2. TO ASK FOR AND GIVE SPECIFIC DIRECTIONS TO A PLACE

TOPIC 8

DIRECTIONS

CULTURAL NOTE

The nation's capital is Tirana, and is centrally located. To the north, the city of Shkodër, is a major cultural center and the religious center of the Roman Catholic Albanians. Directly to the west of Tirana, is the panoramic seaport of Durrës, the country's largest. To the south lies Elbasan with its oriental charm, and the picturesque town of Berat, known for its religious shrines and the distinctive architecture of its houses. Farther south, on the seacoast, is the town of Vlorë, site of the proclamation of Albania's independence on November 28, 1912. The town of Korça, southeast of Tirana, has been for a long time a center of culture and arts.

Most of the foreign visitors and tourists are attracted by Albania's beaches on the Adriatic Sea, and its Northern Alps. Due to the limited industrialization of the country, most of it has kept its clean air and its natural beauty (except for the town of Elbasan, which was turned into an ecological disaster by a rather primitive but huge metallurgical plant).

Foreign tourists are also interested in seeing the town of Krujë where there is a Museum dedicated to Albania's national hero George Kastrioti (known as Skenderbeu), the general who fought Turkish invasions for 25 years during the 15th century. The archeological discoveries of Durrës, Pojan (former Apollonia), and Butrint are most interesting.

There is a castle in almost every town of Albania, some better preserved than others. The castle of Shkodër, built by the Illyrians some 3,000 years ago, stands majestic at the entrance of the town. (The castles of Berat and Gjirokastër, further south are similarly notable.)

Albania has four major rivers running from east to west. None of them is navigable, except for shorter tracts. The lakes (Shkodër, Pogradec, and Prespë) are beautiful and unspoiled.

There are many sites in Albania waiting for a successful development for tourism, especially the beaches and the Northern Alps with their skiing potential. An ALBATOURIST government agency promotes tourism and assists foreigners asking for information. It is located in the capital of Tirana.

TOPIC 9

SHOPPING

CULTURAL NOTE

Shopping in Albania until the 1945 Communist takeover was done exclusively in privately owned stores. Merchants of all kinds filled the main streets of major cities. In the outskirt areas, stores of essential goods and services - baker, grocer, barber, shoemaker, and the like--made a small nucleus of stores serving mainly their neighborhood. In the villages, one could find mainly grocers and locksmiths, since bread and food was prepared at home by farmers.

Most Albanians did their major shopping on a certain day, or days, of the week usually in an open air market of the nearest town, called "PAZAR," an oriental-style bazaar, noisy but colorful.

After World War II, domestic commerce was taken over by the Government, both wholesale and retail. Almost everything was rationed, and specific days and hours were assigned for the supply of different sections of the population. Scarcity eliminated the choice, and food was rationed to a poor population, who worked hard to avoid starvation.

In post-war Albania the weekly shopping was discontinued, as a regimented shopping system replaced it, and proved to be a failure. More recently, the government's network of domestic commerce has fallen apart. Individuals and small groups of entrepreneurs have taken the initiative to form a private market under difficult conditions, but there are shortages of almost everything. Farmers have gotten their land, but have no implements to till it, since the government owns the agricultural machinery now in disrepair. It is hoped that little by little, a more organized free market will eventually be able to supply the essential goods for the local population. At present, Albania is suffering from lack of food, including the bread, milk and dairy products, sugar, oil, soap, and other essentials. These items are sold at exorbitant prices to a population who live on meager salaries or unemployment benefits. As of now, there are no supermarkets in Albania.

In the last two years, serious shortages of food and other consumer products have occurred. Fortunately, humanitarian shipments of food and of other critical goods from other countries are doing a lot to alleviate the situation.

SOCIAL LIFE

CULTURAL NOTE

In the past, Albanians generally entertained one another by exchanging social visits, relating folk tales, and playing old games handed down from one generation to another. But modern commercial forms of amusement have caught up with Albania, too. Nowadays, they also go to the cinema and the theater, visit museums, attend concerts and folk festivals, and travel to the country's different vacation resort areas. Albanians like to visit the nation's historic monuments. Presently, youth in particular are very fond of Western music and TV. Such American drama serials as "Dallas" and "Dynasty" were huge successes.

However, two forms of entertainment with a long past in that country remain the same: the coffehouse and the leisurely walk through the main street of the town every evening and on Sundays (SHETITJE).

One can see huge crowds filling the smoky rooms of the coffeehouses playing cards, dominos, checkers and chess, or simply chatting while chainsmoking. The main subject of the daily discussions remains domestic and international politics, mainly by men, an attitude Albanian women resent. Drinking at the coffeehouses is not widespread, except for the beer. The famous "RAKI" is usually consumed in the bar-like places called PIJETORE (or the Turkish name of MEJHANE), which even today are seen as undesirable places for "decent people."

The leisurely walk in the main street of the town serves many purposes. Besides its function as a physical exercise, it is also used to meet friends, and for young boys and girls who like flirting, "to screen" the beauties of the town. Pleasant, inoffensive remarks are "thrown" to the favorites or prospective sweethearts, by the more "audacious" young men.

For Sundays and holidays, soccer games remain the main attraction as fans fill the stadiums to capacity. With the introduction of the TV, however, many people, including youth, prefer staying home. Modernity is changing Albanian society, too.

3. TO GO TO THE MOVIES, THEATER, CONCERT

TOPIC 11

COMMUNITY SERVICES

CULTURAL NOTE

Community services in Albania have existed for a long time. Banking and other financial institutions operated in the country before, although many of them were foreign-owned. Other community services, such as public utilities have always been operated and funded by the government. Police, firefighters, sanitation workers, and the like, were well-organized although on a limited scale. Again, the countryside has sorely missed these services.

After the war, the communist government became the sole employer. All services were fully taken over by a government intent on changing the entire social fabric of Albania.

These changes involved also the gradual reduction of the family influence, and the gradual disappearance of the extended family. With most of the women joining the working force, full time or part time, and away from home in shops, factories, offices, etc., services such as child care centers and kindergartens became indispensable.

Presently, all community services are severely taxed or handicapped owing to lack of supplies, equipment, and other resources.

TOPIC 12

AT THE WORK PLACE

CULTURAL NOTE

As is the case for other countries, Albanians too work on farms, in factories, shops, schools, and offices.

In spite of the communist government's efforts "to forcibly industrialize" the country, about 65 percent of the local population lives in the countryside, as Albania remains primarily an agricultural country.

Farm work is still harsh. The mechanization of farm work is in its initial stage, and most of the jobs are done by hand. Foreigners are surprised to see that most of the farm work is done by women who are constantly seen in the fields, while many men still congregate and chat leisurely, or play games in the village's coffeehouses.

In the cities, the regimented working class is beginning to break down. Most factories, if not closed, are operating only part time. Workers by hundreds of thousands live on a meager unemployment check known as "tetëdhjetëshi," (80 percent) of the salary paid by the government. In mines and large metallurgical plants, working conditions are described as deplorable. Even working in schools and hospitals is becoming more difficult with every passing day for lack of basic conditions such as heat in winter and water in summer. Office jobs remain attractive still, as they are generally perceived as being comfortable and perhaps more lucrative.

All in all, forcible industrialization has also added to this gloomy picture, bringing in heavy pollution leading to serious health hazards in the work place.

TOPIC 13

MEDICAL

CULTURAL NOTE

Before WW II, the health care system in Albania was in its rudimentary stage. The entire structure was based on the former military hospitals inherited mainly from the invading armies of Turkey, Austria, and Italy. To this motley structure, one must add a few private clinics, and health centers supported by Catholic religious orders, especially in the North.

The situation in the countryside was deplorable. Except for a campaign to fight malaria by the Rockefeller Foundation, no major efforts were undertaken to eradicate such devastating diseases as TB and venereal diseases. One had to walk many miles to reach a doctor's office. The number of physicians - all educated abroad - was minimal, and the profession was limited mainly to the children of the rich.

After WW II, Albania has witnessed notable growth in health care. Preventive medicine has been especially successful. From pregnancy to early childhood, mothers and children have been the object of a well-organized - although limited - health care system, starting from scratch and with admirable results in reducing infant mortality.

Hospitals and dental clinics also have been built in all parts of the country, including the remote areas. Unlike before the war, medical students can now earn their medical degree within the country, at the University of Tirana Medical School. As a result of this activity, the life expectancy of the population has dramatically increased.

Nevertheless, health care currently suffers seriously from lack of medicine, medical equipment, detergents, and other essential necessities. A good part of this need has been filled through charitable, private, and governmental assistance from the U.S. and Europe.

TOPIC 14

RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES

CULTURAL NOTE

People to people relations between the U.S. and Albania began with the first Albanian emigrant reaching the shores of America in 1882. After that day, small groups of Albanians followed until WW I. Most of them settled in the New England area. In Boston, New York, and Jamestown the first small Albanian communities established new churches, new cultural and political groups and associations (prominent among them being VATRA of Boston), newspapers, clubs, etc. helping considerably the advent of Albania's independence, in November 28, 1912. During WW I several hundred Albanians served with the U.S. Army in Europe.

In 1917, Albanians in America drew the attention of President Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt. Both promised to assist the newly formed country at the Paris Peace Conference, and they did so. The concept of America as an ally of Albania was thus founded on solid grounds, and remained strong thereafter.

After WW I about 10,000 Albanian-Americans returned to Albania with a desire to help but with little success. Many Americans too became attached to the Albanian cause. Names such as Charles Crane, Telford Erickson, Harry T. Fultz, and Rose W. Lane, and organizations Near East Foundation, American Junior Red Cross, Rockefeller Foundation are well known in Albania for their charitable and educational efforts.

During WW II, Albania sided with the Allies, but after the communist takeover of the country, relations with the U.S. were broken until March 1991. Presently, there is a significant interest shown for Albania among the official circles in Washington, D.C. as well as in the private sector. Large amounts of food and medicine have been dispatched to alleviate the present crisis situation. Even today, America, in the eyes of most Albanians is the land of the free and, of course, the land of "of milk and honey."

Such an idealized view of the U.S. is certainly due to the substantial financial, economic, and cultural achievements of the Albanian communities in the U.S., which have now grown especially with the emigration of Albanians in Yugoslavia, victims of political repression. It is believed that the number of Albanians in the U.S. has passed the 300,000 mark. Many of them have distinguished themselves in the world of business, a flashpoint of attraction for the impoverished masses of "mother Albania."

America is also perceived as the main hope for the economic recovery of that country, and Americans are, as a result, most welcome by the local population.

A new feature of modern Albania today is the widespread study of English language.

Ph: Yes! E-mycin and some aspirin. Two E-mycin a day.

PCV: Thank you! How much is it?

Ph: Social Security pays for it. Don't forget to get a lot of liquids.

PCV: I like them cold.

Ph: No. Hot liquids. Tea, milk, and if you want yogurt, also.

PCV: I see. Thank you.

4. To describe one's emotional state

PCV: I feel really bad. My entire body is aching.

I: This shall pass too.

PCV: I have no taste to eat anything.

I: But you must eat something.

PCV: Even talking I find it painful.

I: Now, I am leaving you alone.

PCV: No, no! (Don't go) because I get bored.

5. To act in an emergency situation

PCV: Hello! The police, please!

P: Hello! This is the police station. What can we do for you?

PCV: On Durrës Street, near the hospital, there is an accident.

P: Car accident? Is it serious?

PCV: Yes! A car hit a man who is now laying down and bleeding.

P: The ambulance will come right away. Did you get the plate number?

PCV: No! It was a blue Peugeot.

P: Thank you!

TOPIC 14. RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES

1. To describe the Albanian community in the U.S. and its achievements

I: We have heard about the Albanian community in America.

PCV: Of course! There are many Albanians in America.

I: Where are they mostly concentrated?

PCV: At the beginning, Boston was well known as a center for Albanians. Now, we have also New York, Detroit, and Chicago, etc.

I: Why is Boston known better than other cities?

PCV: Because it was the center of the Albanian Orthodox Church and of VATRA.

I: Yes, we have heard about the Church, about VATRA, Noli and Konitza.

PCV: There are other Albanians who have achieved success in America.

2. To report on personal contact with Albanian friends in the U.S.

AH: Over there in America, have you met any Albanians?

PCV: Yes! In New York, I have met some Albanians.

AH: What do they do? What kind of jobs do they hold?

PCV: The one that I met was a professor. They all speak constantly about Albania.

AH: Have you met others?

PCV: Yes! Most of them are in business and have been quite successful.

AH: Do they still speak Albanian?

PCV: All parents speak Albanian, their children speak a little. However, they have opened schools to teach Albanian.

3. To explain U.S. assistance to Albania

PCV: American assistance to Albania has different forms. Peace Corps is one of them.

V: What kind of other assistance has America brought in?

PCV: Food and plenty of medicine.

V: All these are temporary assistance. What about later?

PCV: I have learned that there are American companies interested in investing in Albania.

V: This is a good initiative because it creates jobs.

PCV: You are right! The Chinese have a proverb which says: "Don't give me a fish; teach me how to fish!"

4. To discuss common interests: Peace, youth, music, arts, and environment.

I: Is American youth conscious of social problems?

PCV: Quite conscious. Especially, against war and for peace.

I: Besides work and study, what interests most American youth?

PCV: I believe that the new music wave which started with Elvis Presley and the Beatles has generated great interest in America.

I: And art?

PCV: Art in America is very expressive. It shows the beautiful and the ugly, sometimes in very explicit forms.

I: We hear a lot about the protection of the environment.

PCV: Yes! Now, everyone has understood the fact that we all live in one planet, and that we must protect it so that it doesn't get polluted to the point of poisoning the atmosphere. Here American youth has advanced.

APPENDIX II

AN OUTLINE OF ALBANIAN GRAMMAR

Two Dialects

Presently, spoken Albanian has two main dialects, and several subdialects. In Northern Albania and in most of Kosova (Albanians in Yugoslavia) GEG, or GEGNISHTË, is used (about 70 percent of the population). TOSK, or TOSKËRISHTË, is used in Southern Albania, part of W. Macedonia and in Chameria (Albanians in Greece) as well as in South Italy (about 30 percent). However, in our days, the written language has been formed, based mainly on the Tosk dialect, and is officially considered to be "the unified national literary language" (Gjuha kombëtare letrare e njësuar). This "official" status was imposed by the communist leaders with harmful consequences to the natural development process of the language.

The essential differences between the two dialects have been described as being limited mainly to the following four elements:

1. The presence of the nasal in GEG, and its absence in TOSK.
Ex: zâ (Geg) zë (Tosk) = voice
2. The n between vowel sounds in GEG is transformed into r in TOSK (rhotacism)
Ex: zâni (Geg) zëri (Tosk) = the voice
vena (Geg) vera (Tosk) = the wine
3. The diphthong ue (GEG) corresponds to ua (TOSK)
Ex: grue (Geg) grua (Tosk) = woman
4. The initial vo (GEG), corresponds to va (TOSK)
Ex: voj (Geg) vaj (Tosk) = oil

"Other morphological differences are gradually diminishing in the literary language, and common forms are progressively coming into use in both dialects." (M. Camaj)

ELEMENTS OF GRAMMAR

The Accent

Stress in Albanian falls on the next to last syllable.

Ex: shqiptári, studénti, Ardíta (definite form of nouns)

Usually the accent is not used in writing, although sometimes it is relevant.

Ex: xhámi (the glass)      xhamí ( mosque)
báu (the grass)      barí (shepherd)

The Article (a, an, the)

There are two kinds:

1. Anterior (or prepositive): indefinite NJË

Ex: një mal (a mountain)

2. Posterior (or postpositive): definite I, U, A, TË

Ex: mal-i (the mountain)      krah-u (the arm)
vajzë-za (the girl)      mish-të (the meat)

The article is also used:

1. To form the genitive case

Ex: Libri i djalit (the book of the boy)

2. To form many adjectives

Ex: i kuq, e kuqe (red)

3. To form some pronouns

Ex: i tij (his), e saj ( hers), i cili (who, which)

4. To form ordinal numbers

Ex: i pari (the first) e dyta (the second, fem.)

5. To form some nouns

Ex: e bukura (the beautiful), të ngrënë (the eating), etc.

The Noun

Contemporary Albanian has two genders: masculine and feminine (the neuter has almost disappeared).

The noun has two forms: definite and indefinite; it may be singular or plural.

The Gender

There is no marker for gender in the indefinite form of the noun as there is in the definite. This form has a postpositive article, which serves to define the noun (as the English "the").

Ex:	Indefinite	Definite
	vend (a place)	vendi (the place)
	mik (a friend)	miku (the friend)
	zog (a bird)	zogu (the bird)
	krah (a wing, an arm)	krahu (the wing, the arm)
	dhé (an earth)	dheu (the earth)

(Note: Nouns with a singular definite ending in i and u are masculine)

dorë (a hand)	dora (the hand)
lule (a flower)	lulja (the flower)

(Note: Nouns with a singular definite ending in a are feminine)

The Plural of Nouns

The indefinite plural ending in a is most common for both masculine and feminine nouns. For the definite form, a -t is added. Ex:

Indef. sing.	Indef. pl.	Definite pl.
një spec (a pepper) m.	spec (peppers)	specat (the peppers)
një dimër (a winter) m.	dimra (winters)	dimrat (the winters)
një vajzë (a girl) f.	vajza (girls)	vajzat (the girls)

Declensions

Albanian has an indefinite as well as a definite declension. The definiteness is expressed through the articles. The noun has a pre and a postpositive article. One example to illustrate the system:

m.s.	f.s.	m.pl.	f.pl.
mal-i (the mountain)	motr-a (the sister)	mal-et	motrat
i mal-it (of the m.)	e motr-ës	të mal-evet	të motravet
mal-it (to the m.)	motr-ës	mal-evet	motravet
acc.mal-in (the mountain)	motr-ën	mal-et	motrat

Albanian has a system of syntagms from nouns with two or three elements. They are connected by morphemes, I, E, TË, SË.

To illustrate:

Një student i Institutit (A student of the Institute)
 Një studente e Institutit (A girl-student of the Institute)
 Studentit të Institutit (To the boy-student of the Institute)
 Studentes së Institutit (To the girl-student of the Institute)

The Adjective

The adjective is divided into two classes: with or without an article.

Ex: inteligjent-e (intelligent, m and f. sing.)
 i, e, të thatë (dry, m and f. sing)

Adjectives without an article are not declined.

Ex: shkolla fillore, shkollat fillore (elementary school, s) i shkollës fillore (of the elementary school)

Adjectives with an article mark the gender by prefixing the singular articles:

i (m) e (f) and të (indef. pl)

Ex:	i mirë	good, m. sg.
	e mirë	good, f. sg.
	të mirë	good, m. f. pl.
	të mira	good, f. pl.

Unlike English, Albanian adjectives follow the noun.

Ex: nëna e dashur = the mother dear.

Comparative and Superlative Forms:

The comparative is construed by means of a particle:

më (more)      më pak (less)      aq...sa (as...as)

Ex: më inteligjent - more intelligent më pak inteligjent - less intelligent aq inteligjent sa - as intelligent as

"Than" is translated with "se" or "nga."

The superlative maybe absolute or relative.

Ex: Iliri është studenti më inteligjent në klasë (Iliri is the most intelligent student in class), Iliri është shumë inteligjent. (Iliri is very intelligent.).

Numbers

They are cardinal and ordinal.

Cardinal numbers do not change, except for 3 (tre, masc.; tri, fem.)

0	zero
1	një	11	njëmbëdhjetë
2	dy	12	dymbëdhjetë
3	tre (tri)	20	njëzet
4	katër	21	njëzet e një
5	pesë	30	tridhjetë
6	gjashtë	40	katërdhjetë
7	shtatë	100	njëqind
8	tetë	1000	një mij
9	nëntë	1,000,000	një milion
10	dhjetë	2,000,000	dy milionë, etc.

The ordinal numbers are derived from the cardinals by adding a T (except when ending in a T) and the articles I (masc.), A (fem.) at the end. They are treated as adjectives and receive the adjectival articles. (Exception: number 1)

Ex: 1 një - i pari, e para (the first, masc. and fem.)
2 dy - i dyti, e dyta (the second, masc. and fem.,
3 tre - i treti, e treta (the third, etc.)
8 tetë - i teti, e teta (the eighth, etc.)

Cardinal numbers precede the noun; ordinals follow it.

Tre studentë (three students)

Studenti i tretë (the third student)

Adverbs

Adverbs, prepositions and conjunctions are invariable. Adverbs are usually placed after the verbs.

Ex: Iliri erdhi sot. (Iliri came today.)
Iliri flet gjermanisht. (Iliri speaks German)

Adverbs deriving from the adjective with an article, keep the form of the masculine adjective dropping the article.

Ex: i mirë (good) mirë (well)
i keq (bad) keq (badly)

Adverbs deriving from adjectives without an article, or from nouns, keep the form of the masculine, most of them adding the suffix -isht (as -ly in English).

Ex: politik-e (political) politikisht (politically) ekonomik-e (economical) ekonomikisht (economically)

Adverbs of place and time do not follow these rules.

Ex: këtu (here); atje (there); ku (where), etc.

The comparative and superlative forms for the adverbs are similar to those for adjectives.

The Preposition

Prepositions are divided according to the noun case. To illustrate:

- nominative: te (at, to); nga (from)

Ex: te shtëpia (at the house), nga shtëpia (from the house)

- genitive: none

- dative: mostly denoting places - pranë (near); para (in front of);
prapa shtëpisë (behind the house), etc.

- accusative: në shtëpi (in the house); për (for); me (with), etc.

- ablative: prej shtëpisë (from the house)

The Pronoun

Some pronouns are invariable.

Ex: U (myself, yourself, etc.); U lava (I washed myself)
QË (which, that). Ex: Libri që lexoj (the book that I read)
VETË (self). E bëra vetë (I did it myself)

The variables are divided in the following manner:

a) personal: Unë, ti, ai, ajo, ne, ju, ata, ato
(I, you, he, she, we, you, they, m. they, f.)

b) reflexive: vetë (self); u (myself, etc.)

c) demonstrative: ky, kjo- këta, këto (this, these, masc. fem)
ai, ajo- ata, ato (that one, those ones)

d) possessive: im, yt, i tij, i saj, jonë, juaj, i, e tyre

e) interrogative: kush? (who?); çka (what?); cili-cila? (which one?)

f) indefinite: dikush (someone); askush (none); çdonjëri (each
one)

Table of Object Pronouns

Direct

Indirect

MË (me, to me)
TË (you, to you)

E (him, her)

I (to him, to her)

NA (us, to us)
JU (you, to you)

I (them)

U (to them)

(Note: Albanian pronouns have a separate declension system)

The Verb

Verbs are regular and irregular, and have the following verbal categories:

1) Voices: active, and medio-passive (including reflexive and impersonal)

2) Moods: indicative, subjunctive, conditional, imperative, participial, gerund, infinitive, optative, admirative (see app 4)

3) Tenses: 3 simple (present, imperfect, past definite), and 5 compounded

The compound tenses are formed with the auxiliaries KAM (I have) and JAM (I am). In their conjugation, Albanian verbs indicate person (1, 2, 3), gender (masc. and fem.), and number (sing. and plural)

To facilitate the conjugation, the forms of the present, past definite, and participle should be known (as in English).

Using the stem of the present indicative as a point of departure, the Albanian verbs fall into two large classes:

1. Verbs with a vowel stem. Ex: PUNO-J (I work) stress on O
2. Verbs with a consonant stem. Ex: HAP (I open)

Sample of the conjugation of a regular verb

Present	Imperfect	Past definite	Future	Conditional
Punoj	Punoja	Punova	Do të punoj	Do të punoja
Punon	Punoje	Punove	Do të punosh	Do të punoje
Punon	Punonte	Punoi	Do të punojë	Do të punonte
Punojmë	Punonim	Punuamë	Do të punojmë	Do të punonim
Punoni	Punonit	Punuatë	Do të punoni	Do të punonit
Punojnë	Punonin	Punuanë	Do të punojnë	Do të punonin
(I work	I used to	I worked	I will work	I would work)

In the passive voice, verbs are divided into: (1) those that do not modify the present stem of the active and (2) those that do modify the present stem of the active form.

Ex: kritiko-j (I criticize); (Pass) kritiko-h-em ( I am criticized) vesh (I dress), (passive) vishem ( I am dressed) e/i

The differences between the passive voice and the reflexive are usually apparent in the use of the verb.

Ex: Vajza e vogël lahet prej s'ëmës. (passive)
The little girl is washed by her mother.

Vajza e vogël lahet (vetë). (reflexive)
The little girl washes herself.

Sample of the indicative present of the passive voice:

La-hem (I am washed)	La-hemi (we are washed)
La-hesh	La-heni
La-het	La-hen

Impersonal Verbs

Impersonal verbs appear always in the the 3rd person:

Ex: Bie shi (it rains)	Frynë erë (it's windy)
Veton (it's lightening)	Bën të ftohët (it's cold)
Bën vapë (it's hot)	Më dhëmb (it hurts)
Më pëlqen (I like it)	Më duket (it appears to me)
(It please me)

Verb Formation

Many new verbs in Albanian are formed from a primary root:

Ex: përpara (in front of)	përparoj (I advance)
mjek (physician)	mjekoj (I cure)
reklamë (advertising)	reklamoj (I advertise), etc.

Syntax

1. The sentence structure.

The pattern of the Albanian sentence, as in English is:

subject + predicate + complements

Ex: Iliri studjon gjuhën shqipe. (Iliri studies Albanian.) s v compl.

Interrogative sentence: Studjon Iliri gjuhën shqipe?
v s compl.

Imperative sentence: Studjoni shqipen! (Study Albanian!)
v compl.

and

Le të studjojë shqipen! (Let him study Albanian!)
Le të bëhet dritë! (Let there be light!)

List of Albanian Language Declension Cases

	Sing. Indefinite	Definite	/Plur. Indef-Definite
Nominative (Who? What?)	një vend a place	vendi the place	/vende - vendet places - the places, etc.

GLOSSARY

NOTE: The following glossary includes words used in this text. Nouns are given in singular indefinite form, and the article-suffixes added for the definite and gender identification. Adjectives are given with the articles I and E for the same reason. Pronouns are given unchanged to avoid confusion. Verbs are given in their present and past definite tenses and participial mood. Some common imperatives are left. Passive voice and impersonals are indicated, as are expressions. Reference numbers indicate topic and competency numbers within that topic.
